

28 January 2010

Dear Colleagues

On behalf of SUEK company it is my pleasure too invite you to participate in the 5th annual international CIS Coal Summit, organized by Adam Smith Institute and Informa Australia in Moscow on 20-21 April 2010.

The global financial crisis has presented some of the most challenging market conditions. The mining and resources sectors in particular have been hit hard by falling commodity prices and reduced global demand.

Even now as markets begin to show signs of a rebound and prices seem to be stabilising, the potential impacts of climate change and carbon trading are bringing further uncertainty to the coal sector. Yet alongside these uncertainties, many new opportunities are now emerging in Asian markets.

The CIS Coal Summit will focus on the outlook for supply and demand (especially in Asian markets), the region's thermal and coking coal production, as well as offering strategic presentations from top CIS coal producers and international buyers. The programme will also present a balanced mixture of plenary sessions and interactive discussions, spotlight presentations and keynote addresses.

Special focus of the programme is the future perspective for CIS and global coal industry in the existing legislative and environmental frameworks.

As one of the key players of the global and regional economy, the CIS coal industry still offers many opportunities and it is essential to keep your finger on the pulse.

Hear from recognized leaders and experts in CIS and international coal markets on their strategies at the CIS Coal Summit for making tough tough decisions that will allow you to become stronger and better placed contenders when the markets recover!

I look forward to welcome you at this important networking meeting for coal industry in Moscow in April!

Sincerely,

*Anna Belova
